

A FORMULA FOR LIFE

GORDON HAYNES

Mitton Hall Farm, Mitton, Lancashire

Gordon Haynes lambs 200 Mules and 400 Swaledales indoors between February and April, along with a few Suffolk ewes.

This year Gordon fed Farmer's Choice Lamb Colostrum to many of his lambs. "Triplets may not receive enough colostrum from their mother, so I fed them Farmer's Choice Lamb Colostrum. Where ewes had poor milk yield, lambs were also given Farmer's Choice Lamb Colostrum as it is important for them to get a good start in life.

"Farmer's Choice Lamb Colostrum is particularly good for the Suffolk lambs, as they are always born hungry, but don't want to suck, so it takes the initial hunger away and within a short time the lambs are up and suckling naturally on their own.

"I have recommended Farmer's Choice Lamb Colostrum to other farmers. It is easier to mix than any other colostrum product that I have used and the good mixing quality means that it flows down the stomach tubes without a bother. Even if I forget to put the lid back on properly, it doesn't go lumpy like other colostrum products.

"All the lambs that received the Farmer's Choice Lamb Colostrum went on really well and were very strong. I will be buying some more in preparation for next season's lambing."
